DETAILED ACTION

1. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-8, drawn to a subcombination anchor, classified in class 24, subclass 115K.
- II. Claims 9-15 and 16-19, drawn to a combination track/anchoring member and anchor, classified in class 410, subclass 104.
- III. Claim 20, drawn to a combination cargo securement attached to a cargo receptacle, classified in class 220, subclass 1.5.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

2. Inventions III and I are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because at least trigger members per se are not required. The subcombination has separate utility such as use as a cleat to secure a boat at a dock.

3. Inventions III and II (claims 9+) are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because at least trigger members per se are not required. The subcombination has separate utility such as use as a slidable cleat assembly to secure a boat at a dock.

4. Inventions III and II (claims 16+) are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because at least ears per se are not required. The subcombination has separate utility such as use as a slidable cleat assembly to secure a boat at a dock.

5. Inventions II (claims 9+) and I are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because at least a body member specifically adapted for slidable engagement with an elongated track per se is not required. The subcombination has separate utility such as use as a static tie point on a warehouse shelf.

6. Inventions II (claims 16+) and I are related as combination and subcombination.

Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because at least a trigger members per se are not required. The subcombination has separate utility such as use as a static tie point on a warehouse shelf.

7. Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

8. Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art because of their recognized divergent subject matter, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

9. Due to the complexity of the above restriction, the requirement is being submitted to applicant in written form to allow ample time to address the issues raised.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).
